Dear Editor,

On behalf of the editors, I am pleased to enclose a review copy of Eating Her Wedding Dress: A Collection of Clothing Poems, as well as informational materials, as per your request. I hope by reading this anthology you become as enlightened as we did to the unique dynamics between poetry and clothing.

Eating Her Wedding Dress has already met with extraordinary success. The Arts Council of Princeton (NJ) hosted our launch party on April 3rd, where 20 contributing poets convened from across the country to read to an extremely delighted sizeable crowd. On April 10th, Gallery 125 in Trenton, NJ, hosted an exceptionally well-attended reading amidst a multi-media art exhibit, Threads, which the gallery arranged especially to compliment our anthology.

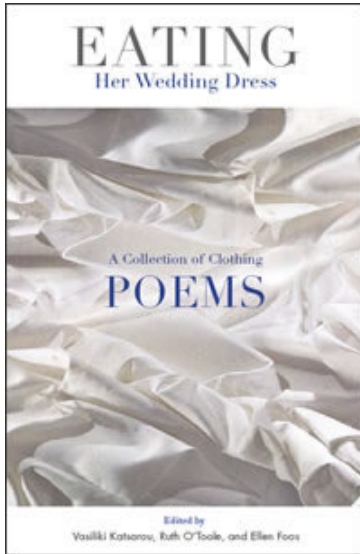

We are excited to announce that the National Arts Club in the sumptuous Tilden Mansion in Gramercy Park, New York, will be hosting a reading by select Eating Her Wedding Dress poets as part of its Page Series on June 4th, 2009. The event is free and open to the public. "Upscale talismanic" attire suggested.

Kindly contact me if you have any questions, or if you decide to review Eating Her Wedding Dress. If so, we would like to post a link to your journal on our Web site, Facebook page, and Twitter page.

Enjoy the poetry!

Ragged Sky Press announces....

Title: *Eating Her Wedding Dress:
A Collection of Clothing Poems*

Editors: Vasiliki Katsarou, Ruth O'Toole, and Ellen Foos

Publication
date: June 2009

ISBN: 978-1-933974-06-4
Paperback $15.00

Pages: 145 pp., 5 1/2 x 8 1/2,
Poetry, Literature, Fashion

Lovers of poetry and fashion alike will savor this provocative collection of poems by 100 contemporary poets, including Kim Addonizio, Margaret Atwood, Billy Collins, Elaine Equi, Jorie Graham, Maxine Kumin, Paul Muldoon, Charles Simic, and many more. The introduction by Ms. Katsarou invokes clothing in its many forms and functions: as desire, as ghost, as body, as poetry, as talisman, as transformer of the soul.

Vasiliki Katsarou is the writer and director of the award-winning film Fruitlands 1843. Her poems have appeared in U.S. 1 Worksheets and wicked alice. Ruth O'Toole is the author of Clarissa@Loveles.com, a variation of Samuel Richardson's Clarissa; and Otsu, a collection of verse inspired by the legendary samurai Miyamoto Musashi. Ellen Foos, author of Little Knitted Sister, is a MacDowell Colony fellow. In 1994, she founded Ragged Sky Press, a labor of love that has enabled many exceptional writers to publish their work.

Eating Her Wedding Dress: A Collection of Clothing Poems

From Literary Bohemian:

Am I what I wear? Reading this fabulous collection inspired me to pause in front of the long mirror in my daughter's bedroom. Then, I started rifling through my closet. Eating Her Wedding Dress is cleverly divided into four parts—or fitting rooms—where we look at who we are, or who we wish we could be without the glare of nasty lighting...

... I release my tongue, lick salt as spit squirts like estrogen between emerging rat teeth capable of grinding, chewing this ceremony of thoughts sliding all denial and neglect like colorless afterbirth down my slippery throat...
